Bremen is located in northwestern Germany, some 60 km (37 mi) from the North Sea. With Bremerhaven the two comprise the state of Bremen.

"Come on, let’s go to Bremen!"

This invitation from the famous fairytale of the four turtles is offered to students from all over the world today: „Come on, let’s go to Bremen!"

The beautiful city of Bremen is a great place to study! Large enough to offer an exciting and ambitious cultural program for all interests, yet small enough to be both welcoming and easy to navigate; large enough for catching a thriller in a 3D multiplex cinema, yet small enough for a safe walk home after.

The highly efficient public transportation system also makes longer trips short and safe. With historical landmarks, varied shopping opportunities and cultural events throughout the year, one is never bored in Bremen. 1,200 years of history have woven a rich tapestry of Hanseatic heritage and cosmopolitan culture. Today, Bremen and its sister-city Bremerhaven - home of a huge seaport - are close enough for catching a thrill in a 3D multiplex cinema, yet small enough for a safe walk home after.

The University of Bremen was founded in 1971 and considered a reform university in its pursuit of new approaches to teaching and research. Over the last three decades it has become the center of research in the Northwest of Germany. Currently about 1,600 researchers and 19,000 students from over 120 countries work and study at our campus.

At the University of Bremen you can choose from English-based international Master’s and Doctoral programs and more than 100 German-based programs on Bachelor and Master level. Whether you would like to apply for sciences or engineering programs, languages or social sciences and humanities – the University of Bremen offers a wide range of disciplines. Of course, all of our programs are fully accredited and recognized the world over. Some of them can be even counted among the world’s top programs or are unique in Bremen.

The course of study necessitates practical experience, is characterized by internationality and is linked closely to the benefits of top-level research here at the University. Internships and study-abroad programs are supported and key qualifications supplement professional study. The foreign language center offers a multitude of courses for foreign language acquisition.

Bachelor’s and Master’s theses are often integrated into academic work groups and are closely connected with research.

We offer specialized support services through our International Office and student advisors who can help you enroll and settle into your new academic life. You can even renew your visa on campus and eat at one of the best university cafeterias in Germany. Come and enjoy our vibrant and diverse campus community!
