Moderated peer coaching for doctoral researchers in all disciplines

Doctoral Research is an exciting, enriching, innovative, and creative endeavor, but it also comes with its fair share of challenges. The Teaming Up format offers you the opportunity to exchange ideas with other doctoral researchers, share experiences, and receive meaningful support along your personal path to a doctorate. Collaborating in a group often sparks fresh perspectives, deeper insights, and new courses of action – bringing greater clarity, boosting motivation, and helping you move closer to your goals.

For doctoral researchers of all disciplines and stages who want to work together with a fixed group in order to

- reflect on their own working methods and roles
- maintain focus, joy in their work, and energy
- develop ways of dealing with challenges
- gain clarity about their own strengths, resources and strategies
- experience exchange, support and mutual motivation
- discover other perspectives, feedback and encouragement as a resource
