Information on applying for admittance as auditor [Nebenhörer(in)]

1. The University of Bremen can admit students of other Bremen universities as auditors. Provided this causes no hindrance to regular students of the University and attending the course(s) in question is deemed necessary or expedient for applicants' own study programs, they can attend lecture courses for a period of one semester. Applicants have to provide grounds to explain why such attendance is deemed to be necessary or expedient. Under certain substantiated circumstances, students belonging to universities outside of Bremen may also be admitted as auditors. Auditors are not matriculated as students of the University of Bremen, although they do have the same rights and responsibilities as the University's regular students.
2. Application forms for auditors [Nebenhörer] are available from the Office for Student Affairs. Applications must contain all relevant details of the courses the applicant wishes to attend.
3. Applicants must obtain a declaration of consent from the leaders of all the courses they wish to attend. If possible, this should be done in the week the course begins. Some Faculties of the University may also require approval by a further member of the Faculty. Applications must be submitted to the Office for Student Affairs together with respective declarations of consent. Closing date for submitting applications in summer semester is April 30 and for winter semester October 31.
4. Upon presenting completed applications accompanied by declaration(s) of consent, applicants will be issued with a written permission to attend the course(s) as auditors.

Closing dates:

Summer semester: 30.04.
Winter semester: 31.10.

Under special substantiated circumstances, students of other universities may also apply for auditor status.

Applications must be accompanied by a certificate of matriculation from the university at which the student is registered as a regular student.
